Students require shots

Palm Beach County health officials Monday, Aug. 24, issued an urgent reminder for parents to heed new immunization requirements relating to school attendance and school entry this term.

A new law effective July 2 makes it mandatory for students entering any grade or attending any grade—kindergarten through 12th—to have documentation of immunization against seven diseases on file with the school.

Since 1971, first-time students for grades K-12 have been required to show proof of immunity to measles, mumps, rubella, diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, and polio prior to being enrolled.

Students already in attendance were not required to comply.

Exceptions will be made only for children who have medical problems and a signed request from their doctors to be exempt either permanently or temporarily.

Children whose parents request in writing an exemption based on religious conflicts may be exempt.

School officials are allowed to issue temporary exemptions for students who transfer into a new county to attend school. Such temporary exemption is limited to the time required to obtain records—not to exceed 30 school days.

GAME TIME...It was time for playing a few games Monday morning at Gove Elementary School before the actually school work was to begin.

IT WAS HAMBURGER AND FRENCH FRIED for students attending school at Pahokee Elementary School on the first day. It was like bringing Mr. Burger King to Dr. Blumberg's friendly domain.

Options reviewed for development program

By JIM JONES

BELLE GLADE—City Commissioners told Mayor M. Harvin, city planning and community development director, that they want to keep their options open for housing and community development (CD) projects within the city.

Harvin presented a report to commissioners, outlining two approaches to housing and CD projects: 1. Remain in the Department of Housing and Urban Development's Small Cities Program, or 2. Become a sub-grantee of Palm Beach County.

Under the Small Cities Program, Belle Glade has received funding every year it has participated, except one, Harvin said.

Should the city elect to become part of the "Urban County," it can probably expect to greatly increase its funding for CD and housing projects, Harvin said.

Harvin recommended that the city keep its options open for both approaches as long as possible, but added that the Urban County program appears to provide the most stable funding source.

John J. Green, executive director for the Palm Beach County Department of Housing and Community Development, indicated in a letter to Harvin Aug. 11 that "if the city agrees," he would request that an interlocal agreement be submitted for the city's review and discussion.

At the same time, Green's staff would meet with Ms. Catherine Brunson, assistant county attorney, for the purpose of drafting a contractual agreement for review and discussion, Green wrote.

Commissioner Charles D. Goodlett wanted to know how long the city could keep its options open.

Harvin responded that the length of time is an "unanswered question."

City Attorney John Baker recommended that the city not make any decision on the program until it had the "opportunity to review the substance of the proposal."

"As it stands now, there are so many unanswered questions," Baker said.

Mayor Thomas Altman wanted to know if the city would be able to prolong execution of the agreement should the concept be found acceptable.

Harvin said that the city's program is now in its seventh year and that funding is secure for the next three years. The county may reapply for each of the three years, however, to give new municipalities the opportunity to enter the Urban County program.

Harvin predicted that if the city entered the program it could expect to receive approximately $800,000 per year through the county.

Mayor Altman expressed concern about the voucher system through which payments from the county to the city would be made.

Money to administer the grant would probably have to come out of the city's general fund. Harvin said that between 10 and 45 days could be anticipated for fund vouchers.

Altman called the time lag a potential expense to the city. The city might have to borrow money for projects while awaiting vouchers from the county.

Commissioner Goodlett said that he is "not elated"

Council grants extension

PAHOKEE—After some hesitation the Pahokee City Council agreed to give Harbor master, William Joiner, his second 90 days extension on paying the city rent on the use of the Pahokee Harbor and Breakwater facilities.

Joiner told the Council at Tuesday night's regular Council meeting, that because of the low level of Lake Okechobee, business had not been as expected during the summer months and asked that the Council waive the rental payments.

Joiner said since he opened the facility in January of this year, $4,648, had been paid to the City. Joiner said the funds were generated from trailer parking fees, the concession stand and the sale of bait and tackle.

Council chairman, George Rashley said he was opposed to the 90 day extension, but could go along with a 30 day extension.

Joiner appeared before the Council in May and asked that the Council waive the rental payments for 90 days because of the lack of business.

Joiner told the Council members they were welcome to look at his books. "I have had to take money from

Students return to class

Summer vacation is over... School is in and the first day brought with it buses filled with happy and not-so-happy students, bells, books, and some tearful beginnings.

Mothers reassuring their sons and daughters that school was not bad as it seem and Govey the cat at Gove Elementary with lots of love and affection.

At Pahokee Elementary it was lunch in the cafeteria for the first time for many of the first graders who were greeted with their all time favorites of hamburgers and french fries. For the most of them they were at their neighborhood Burger King and not Pahokee Elementary School at all.

City has handle on water

In briefing Belle Glade City Commissioners on the city's water problems this year, City Manager Rolfe Wagner said Monday night, Aug. 24, that it is his belief that the city has "taken all prudent steps to assure a capability to supply both domestic and industrial needs of the city."

Wagner reviewed the events of this past spring which brought the city to the brink of loss of its water supply.

The 15th annual Florida Sugar Cane League Safety Conference will be held Wednesday, Sept. 2, at John B. Boy Auditorium in Clewiston.

The afternoon conference will begin at 1:30 and will feature topics related to safety in the mill and the fields.

The highlight of the program will be the presentation of the safety award which is given to the company with the least number of harvesting accidents.

Plant clinic set

Belle Glade - A plant clinic will be conducted by Gene Joyne, Urban Horticulturist, Palm Beach County Cooperative Extension Service, at the Glades Agricultural Office, 2979 North 441, on Friday, Sept. 4 from 11 a.m. to 12 noon.

Many people have problems with various plants in their landscapes and need help in diagnosing what the problem is and how to correct it. This plant clinic is set for the purpose of allowing the public to bring in any problems they are having with their trees, shrubbery, or lawns, and an agent will be available to look at the samples and diagnose the problem.

Bulletins on various subjects are also available at the agricultural Extension office and those attending the plant clinic are certainly encouraged to pick up bulletins of interest to them.

Persons who are unable to come to the Agricultural office during the clinic hour may call in plant problems: 996-1655, ext. 33, and Joyner will try to answer your questions over the phone.

This free clinic is not a formal class or lecture and is conducted on a very informal basis. Anyone having plant problems is encouraged to attend.

Blood check offered

The Belle Glade Fire Department is sponsoring free blood pressure checks Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The program provides an easy way for persons to determine whether they have high blood pressure. About 13 percent of those checked are referred to a physician for further testing.

Winn Dixie reports record earnings

Sales and earnings for Winn-Dixie Stores, Inc., reached all-time highs in fiscal 1981.

The Jacksonville based stores report sales for the year ended June 24, 1981, totaled $6,200,167,000 or 15.1 percent over the previous year. The fourth quarter sales increase was 12.9 percent.

For the year, primary earnings per share were $3.67 compared with $3.42 in 1980. Fourth quarter earnings per share figures were 86 cents versus 88 cents in 1980. Net profit after tax amounted to $95,395,000, up from $91,950,000 in 1980. Fourth quarter 1981 net earnings were $22,148,000 compared with $23,280,000. Commenting on results, Winn-Dixie President Bert L. Thomas said, "Sales and profits for the first three quarters were on target, but we were not pleased by our fourth quarter performance. A more cautious attitude by consumers in a keen competitive environment produced sales gains below budgeted levels. Current merchandising efforts are designed to achieve improved sales momentum and acceptable results in fiscal 1982."

Dividends were raised for the 38th consecutive year in July when monthly payments rose from 16 cents to 18 cents per share, making the new annual rate $2.16 up from $1.92 in fiscal 1980. During fiscal 1981, the company opened 66 new supermarkets, closed 38 and had 1,220 in operation on June 24, 1981, as compared with 1,192 a year ago.

*Approved charitable contributions totaling $6,985 including $6,000 for Wee Care Child Development Center, $700 for the Association for Retarded Citizens of the Glades Area, and $200 for Planned Parenthood. Also receiving grants were the Womens Civic Club, safety patrols, juvenile diabetes, and the sickle cell program.

County approves paving ordinance for unincorporated areas

WEST PALM BEACH - Residents of the unincorporated areas of Palm Beach County may soon see improvements in sub-standard streets and roads in their areas. The Palm Beach County commission has approved a new Municipal service taxing ordinance that will provide for special assessments to pay for road and street construction and maintenance.

The action was passed on a five to nothing vote of the board Tuesday, August 18, during the regular commission session.

The taxing districts will be set up in each of the five county commission districts, and will have the authority to levy the special assessment taxes necessary from property owners to pay for the improvements.

The ordinance provides a procedure for property owners to petition the board for road improvements, and sets up a system for property owner meetings, and signature petitions.

While the full county commission has passed the new ordinance, its implementation may have to wait until next year. County department heads are trying to find out if the special assessments can be levied in the upcoming fiscal year.

however most are not optimistic. An opinion on the matter is being sought from the county property appraiser.

the city was able to continue full production of raw water from the facility from mid-March until early May when lake levels dropped below 11 feet, he said. In May, the city transferred its pumping effort to the Rim Canal.

Due to the limited capacity of the Rim Canal Point, the city supplemented its water supply by pumping from the Hillsboro Canal during the final months of the Sugar Growers Cooperative season, he said.

A two million gallon per day pump on the Hillsboro Canal was used on a part-time and reserve basis.

The city's long-term water problems will be solved by including a Rim Canal suction line in the main pump station, he said.

Placement of coral rock on each side of the pump station has begun to prepare for higher lake levels, he said. The coral rock provides a clean basin from which to pump raw water.

The city is exploring means of installing a pump on the Hillsboro Canal for supplemental pumping for the Co-op, which requires approximately 2.5 million gallons of water per day.

Take care, school's in School is in and driving motorists are asked to be extra careful as they drive and watch out for our students who will be crossing streets near the schools they attend. Driving a little slower, means going where you would like to go is going to take a little more time, but think of the life you might be saving and the accident you might be preventing.

ZPG opposes immigration plan

Editor:

The immigration proposals set forth by the Reagan Administration neither meet the needs for effective control of illegal immigration nor provide the framework for a rational overall immigration and refugee policy.

Once more we offered a temporary, piecemeal approach to one of the more significant population, economic and foreign policy issues of our time. This is not the package approach we had hoped for from this Administration. We are most disappointed in the failure to provide some long range goals for this country; the demographic consequences of our immigration policy have once again been ignored.

Zero Population Growth is particularly concerned about the proposal for legalization of undocumented aliens which calls for a new status of "renewable term temporary residency." This 10-year wait for permanent resident status is nothing more than modern day indentured servitude. It represents a disguised backdoor massive guestworker program. Worse, since these "temporary" residents would not be legally entitled to bring in their spouses and children for 10 years, further illegal immigration would be encouraged. Countless numbers will be added to our population who will be outside of the basic services such as health and education. The price to pay down the road will be tremendous.

The Administration's proposal for sanctions against employers who hire illegal aliens seems to forbid control for appearance sake only. It may well result in government-sanctioned discrimination against "foreign-looking" people by employers. There is no commitment for funding and manpower for enforcement, thus the alleged sanctions will not work but will at the same time put untold power in the hands of an employer against the most helpless in society. The American public deserves better than just another meaningless law on the books.

ZPG also rejects the idea of "experimental guestworker program" whatever the size. Such programs are just channels of immigration and increased population growth, in disguise. We do not need them here, where unemployment is rampant. A national non-profit membership organization which advocates planning for an end to population growth, Zero Population Growth, Inc. and its Florida affiliate urge Congress and the American public to reject the Administration's proposals as ineffective, inhumane, unworkable, and

It would be interesting to trace man's interest in politics back to the very beginning.

I can see the first cavemen politician climbing onto a soapbox and making some long forgotten first promise.

There were probably some curious glances and finally a startled reaction when he asked for votes.

After all, votes were not normally discussed because no one had ever heard of them.

But they citizenry went along with the idea when promised two mastodons in every pot.

It is awe-inspiring that early man was able to band together and make decisions for governing himself. People are hard enough to control in their current civilized state. I can hardly imagine what they were like back in the days when they were sabertooth tiger loin cloth.

Of course, we might be surprised if we knew what the early cavemen were really like. We might discover that they were a gentle race of people with a great deal of compassion and understanding for each other.

Scientists are saying Neanderthal Man were gentle creatures. Neanderthal Man became extinct, while Cro Magnon, a more aggressive species, flourished.

Despite recent revelations about the Neanderthal Man, cavemen in general don't have the best reputation. That's to be expected because man's reputation in general could use some sprucing up. Man has received a lot of well-deserved bad press.

It is difficult to believe that the cavemen were anything like the Flintstones.

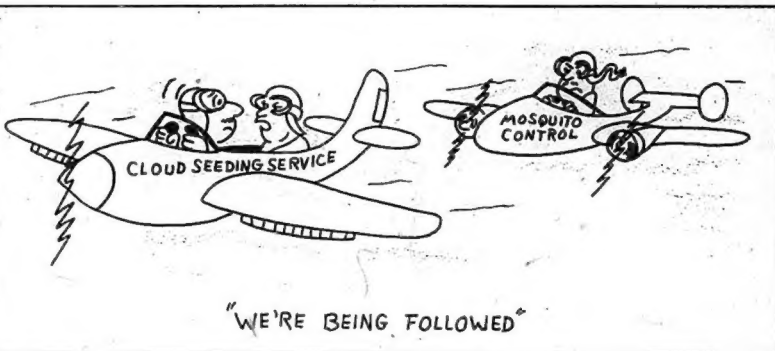

I see them eating raw meat. Arguments were settled with big clubs, rather than with calm, rational argument.

There were no indoor plumbing facilities. Baths were limited to whenever they got caught in a rainstorm or fell into a river (if they didn't drown first). They didn't smell real nice.

In short, they were a rough bunch—just the sort that any National Football League coach would love to have on his team.

Instead of football, man first developed kings, and queens. We've been wondering ever since whether we got our priorities straight.

Hawkins is for immigration plan

By U.S. Senator
Paula Hawkins
The Administration, finally, has submitted its immigration policy to Congress. It is, overall, a sound and thoughtful policy. It's not a cure-all for our problems in Florida, but it creates the framework for responsible, even-handed enforcement of our immigration laws.

The Administration has vowed that this policy will prevent another Mariel incident. It includes provisions to control the influx of illegal aliens into the United States, and provisions to intercept and turn back boats carrying illegal aliens.

Perhaps most importantly, the new immigration policy signals decisive action after years of indecision. For years, we have been struggling along with no policy, and no policy amounts to a policy of neglect. That neglect precipitated a crisis in Florida, and so I welcome the President's plan as a solid step toward establishing new immigration procedures.

The influx of illegal aliens into Florida has placed an intolerable burden on the Miami area, but the immigration problems have taken their toll on the rest of the state as well. Florida taxpayers will have to pay an estimated $30 million or more to cope with the cost of illegal immigration into our state, a cost that will not be covered by federal reimbursements.

And the financial cost to the people of Florida is only a part of the burden we must bear. Social tensions have mounted between some groups who fear the loss of jobs to illegal aliens willing to work for substandard wages.

There are concerns over the reports of diseases that have come into the country with the entrants, and also over reports that Cuban intelligence agents are infiltrating groups of both Cubans and Haitians to engage in subversive activities. Probably the greatest single concern to Floridians is the increase in crime that has accompanied the arrival of the illegal aliens. This situation has caused a tremendous strain on the law enforcement resources of the state of Florida, and the communities involved.

In Florida, the need for procedures to control the influx of people and for money to enforce our immigration laws is acute. It was pleased that the Administration acknowledges that the immigration and refugee problems are national problems requiring national, not state, solutions. The burden must be borne by all states, and time must be provided for Florida to recover, economically and socially, from the most recent inundations.

We are a generous nation, but the tremendous burden of illegal aliens we have had to shoulder in Florida has stretched our generosity to the limit. The goals of this policy are tough, but they are fair, and they point our nation in the right direction toward a solution to our problems.

Pahokee and surrounding farm lands moved one step closer to adequate water control when voters of the last Beach Water Control District voted overwhelmingly in favor of issuing up to $300,000 in bonds to improve the water control system.

The bond paid for a new pumping station, new drainage canals and improvements in existing canals. The house on Bacon Point Road in which Mr. and Mrs. O.B. McClure lived for many years during 'ahokee's pioneer days, and in which they raised their family before moving into their new home, was moved a back of the E.R. Wagon residence on Bacon Point Road.

The old McClure house was one of the few homes in 'ahokee that survived the 1928 hurricane without too much damage.

The Southern Bell Telephone Company planned to spend approximately $150,000 to improve and expand its facilities in the Glades Area. Included in the project was a work center, store

Cancer and the Delaney Clause History—

The Delaney Clause of the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act is probably the most controversial food legislation the United States has ever produced. The Clause says, in effect, that any substance found to induce cancer when administered in any amount to any animal species is unsafe for addition to human food and must be banned.

A report on the Delaney Clause, its background, impacts, and alternatives, has just been released by the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology (CAST), an association of 25 scientific societies. The report was prepared by multidisciplinary task force of 17 scientists chaired by F. J. Francis, professor in food science and nutrition at the University of Massachusetts and president of the Institute of Food Technologists.

"The Delaney Clause," says Francis, "attempts to avoid risk of human cancer from addition of carcinogens to the food supply. The toxicologists on our task force point out, however, that negative results in the animal tests used in attempts to identify potential human carcinogens cannot be taken as proof of safety, and positive results in animals can be interpreted only with uncertainty to define safe levels of human exposure. The only circumstances under which assessment of human risk approaches credibility are those in which the agent is used under conditions similar to those of human use and in which the agent is likely to be the principal cause of a specific form of cancer."

The report points out that regulating the addition to the food supply of substances for which there is some evidence of carcinogenicity presents a dilemma. Should we strive for "zero risk" as a reasonable goal in carcinogen regulation, as implied by the Delaney Clause, and accept the loss of social benefits that policy entails? Or should we accept some level of risk to derive greater net social benefits than we can obtain with the zero-risk policy? The difficulty of resolving the dilemma is increased by the uncertainty about the meaning of the evidence in terms of risk of cancer to humans.

The regulatory climate in general and the Delaney Clause in particular have a pervasive effect, not only on food additives, but also on drugs for food-producing animals as well as synthetic pesticides. The consequences are fewer approved chemicals, less food, and higher food costs to consumers. These effects are a consequence of the selective attention we direct to only certain chemicals.

Do we have the social courage to face up to the fact that there is evidence of carcinogenicity of many of the building blocks of our food? "For example," says Francis, "if we were to apply the same standards to the proteins, fats, and carbohydrates in our food supply that we used in banning Red No. 2, we would have to ban food. So what we do to keep food on our tables is to use the zero-risk philosophy of the Delaney Clause when it suits us, and quietly accept the risk and pretend it isn't there when we can't afford, or prefer not, to do otherwise. Unfortunately, most of us haven't even thought about this aspect of food safety."

And do we have the social courage to face up to the fact that certain weak carcinogens inhibit cancer development from strong carcinogens in rats and mice, and that if the same happens in humans some of the actions we take as a consequence of the zero-risk philosophy of the Delaney Clause could increase the risk of the cancer for certain persons?

The reports point out that several options exist for regulating potential carcinogens associated with the food supply if the zero-risk philosophy typified by the Delaney Clause were to be eliminated. These include using a warning on the food label as with aspartame, accepting the level of risk corresponding to the maximum net social benefits, or accepting some lower level of risk. Single copies of Report No. 89, "Regulation of Potential Carcinogens in the Food Supply: The Delaney Clause," are available free of charge from CAST, 260 Memorial Union, Ames, Iowa 50011 (Telephones 515-294-2036 and 2903). Tough schedules usual at Pahokee Pahokee High School has one of the toughest schedules of any Class 2A team in the state. Clewiston and Immokalee are the only 2A teams on the schedule. The rest are all 4A and 3A teams.

Some of the toughest the Blue Devils will contend with this year are Cardinal Newman, Boca Raton, Fort Pierce Central, Fort Pierce Westwood, Forest Hill, and Northshore. Never mind that arch-rivals Glades Central and Clewiston are right at Pahokee's door step.

Part of the reason the Blue Devil schedule is so tough is because they play in the Suncoast Conference. "They must have thought we were going to be good," Hyneman says.

The Blue Devils have every right to feel just a bit of trepidation, right?

"They don't know the meaning of the word intimidation," says first year head coach James Hyneman. "They feel like they can beat anyone who steps on the field."

While it's too early to predict what will happen this fall, Hyneman seems to have another one of those typical Blue Devil squads that can make it very hot for just about any opponent.

Hyneman has plenty of athletes vying for starting assignments. Every position is open, he says.

"They don't know the meaning of the word intimidation."

—Coach Hyneman

The Blue Devils carried about 25 players on the varsity last year. Thirty-six turned out this fall, and Hyneman plans to enter the season with about 32 players.

Interest in football at Pahokee High School for the foreseeable future remains high. About 50 youngsters turned out for the junior varsity team, but Hyneman says that number will have to be cut in half because the school cannot afford to equip all the boys who want to play.

Among players to be replaced are linebacker Jorge Torres, safety Joe McKelton, quarterback Boris Banks, tailback Michael Rawls, lineman Felix Tomlin, and last, but not least, and Clint Wilson who is now playing at Pittsburgh.

"I've been real pleased with the workouts," Hyneman said. "Most of the kids reported with a good attitude, in good shape, and have worked hard. We have had good leadership."

Hyneman said he has spent a lot of time on conditioning because he can't afford to lose players to injury.

"We're going to need some good effort. If it all falls in place, we'll be alright," he said.

RUNNING BACK Walter Johnson should play a big part in the Pahokee High School football story this fall. He is a strong player who should fend authority to the Blue Devil running attack.

PLAYERS attempting to get in a little relaxation while reclining in the front-leaning rest position can expect to hear a coach yell, "All right, straighten up those backs."

HEAD COACH James Hyneman is in his first year as head coach at Pahokee School. He spent a nine-year apprenticeship as assistant coach before moving into the top slot.

LINEMAN Duke Lawler practices blocking exercises.

EXERCISING those neck muscles helps Pahokee players get ready for a tough fall season. Coach James Hyneman says his players don't know the meaning of fear on the gridiron.

THE GATORS...The Glades Day School Gators football team is looking forward to another successful season and a repeat of last year's trip to the Class-A State Football Championship. The Gators won a 7-6 thriller against the Baker Gators.

Glades Day looks forward

By SCOTT ELLIS

With the loss of eight starters and the toughest schedule it has ever had, the Glades Day High School Gators face the 1981 football season with its work cut out for it.

The Gators won't the hearts of Glades residents last year by taking the state Class A football championship, beating Baker in the final game in December.

The win over Baker made the Gators' 1980 record a perfect 13-0, an all-time Glades Day mark and the best mark in sanctioned high-school football that season. But Coach Byron Walker says that's last season, a part of the past.

"We're going to let bygones be bygones and leave the plaques on the wall to look at," Walker said. "The 1980 season is over; that team, in essence, is gone. We're not the state champions...we're defending 1980 state champions. This is the 1981 football season."

Walker's attitude is probably the wise one, because with the loss of several key defensive players to graduation, Glades Day will lose the overpowering size and weight it had on the line and in the backfield.

"Physically, I'm not real sure we're going to be as awful small. We don't have any depth (either) particularly on our interior line, either offensively or defensively. We had exceptional size for the Class A level last year," Walker said.

Veteran Raul Garcia will probably be the Gators' starting quarterback this fall, Walker said, replacing starter Nacho Bueno who graduated. But while Bueno was great on the option, Walker said he planned to get away from this type of offense, and go instead with Garcia's better passing ability.

"We're going to throw the ball a lot more this year and we're going to try and get the ball to Vanscoy," Walker said.

Tobin Vanscoy, (6'1", 195 pounds, 500 yards rushing in five games) while not a starter last year, saw a lot of playing time, coming over to Glades Day in mid-season. He will be a probable starter, along with returning starter Julio Rivas and probable flanker Tommy Wilson.

Other returning offensive stars include guard Paul Allen, all-state center Tony Guerrero, Abesud Hallum, a 213-pound guard and tight end Richard Schiele.

On defense, the Gators will have fewer returnees—Andy Fontaine, Scott Meredith at cornerback, Rivas at roverbuck, Eric Strickland at tackle.

Head Coach Walker, who is now also administrative assistant to Headmaster William Branyon, has the same staff returning—assistants Dick Schmitt and Mandy Perez. There is a new junior varsity coach, however, Jack Hopler.

The Glades Day schedule is a lot rougher, says Walker, with four schools that played the Gators last year opting not to tussle with the state champs this time around. Their first match is against Class AA Fort Lauderdale Pinecrest, one of the top-rated state high school football teams of 1980.

The other two new teams on tap are against Lake Placid and Boca Raton Academy.

All these teams are much better than the four teams that are missing from the Gators schedule this year—Christian Day School, LaBelle, Bishop Verot and Gold Coast Christian at Fort Lauderdale.

KEEPING THE FAITH

"The law of the Lord is perfect, reviving the soul. The statutes of the Lord are trustworthy, making wise the simple. The precepts of the Lord are right, giving joy to the heart. The commands of the Lord are radiant, giving light to the eyes." Psalm 19, 7-8 NIV

What is it that decides what is right or wrong? How can we set our standards? What do we set them by? These are questions we all ought to face and come up with answers.

Unfortunately, some people never face those questions, therefore they never attempt to find answers. Still others let someone else answer those questions for them.

Where do we find answers to what is right and wrong? Some people would say, "what ever feels good is right." Still others, either consciously or unconsciously, let the world about them set their standards of right and wrong. If something is acceptable to our neighbors and friends, then it must be right. If it is unacceptable to them, then it must be wrong.

In my life time, I have seen a tremendous change in what is acceptable and what is unacceptable. Many of those changes have been bad. Some moral standards that have become acceptable today were completely immoral twenty-five years ago.

What is a dependable guide for right and wrong? I do not know of but one. The one dependable authority for what is right and wrong is the Bible.

Now some one says, "Is that not a bit old fashioned?" Yes, it may be. But so is breathing, eating, and sleeping. Human nature is also the same now as it was several thousands of years ago. Lying, stealing, cheating, murder and adultery did not come into being some time after the turn of the century. People were doing these same things from the very beginning.

Now if something was wrong before God two thousand years ago, how does it get to be right now? It does

The Bible is God's Word. In His word we have His law which is perfect. In fact it is the only perfect law I know of. Our best laws are those that are based on His law (the Bible).

The Bible is also the basis of authority. One of the biggest problems we have in this nation is the breakdown of authority on all levels. Why is this? One reason is because so many people do not even understand what authority is, their relationship to it, and its beginning.

All authority has to have a beginning. This nation began with a recognition of the authority of God's Word—the Bible. Our founding fathers recognized the Bible as the authority for all law.

The Bible was recognized as the authority on marriage and the home. Because of this, all other law was established, and carried the authority of not only government, but also of God. Because the Bible was recognized as the authority of the home and marriage, the home had a stability that has been lost in recent years.

All of us need an ultimate authority that we can depend on; one that is absolute. The Bible is such an authority that we can depend on. It has stood the test of time that nothing else can match.

The Ten Commandments are not only God's perfect law, but they are trustworthy, making right and wrong simple. Living God's way brings a sense of joy and happiness not found any place else.

But if we are to live His law we have to know and understand it. This means reading and studying his word. I believe everybody needs to be involved in the study of God's word.

Too many people would say they believe the Bible, but have not read it through much less have they even done much serious study about it.

Studying about the word of God (Bible) is good background for understanding, but the content of the Bible is what we need to know and understand.

Gardening guidelines for August

August is a rough month for gardening in Florida. It's too late to plant many summer flowers and too early for winter varieties. And furthermore, it's just too darn hot to spend all day slaving in the yard. But don't despair, there are plenty of easy jobs left to do. Here's a potpourri of easy-to-do garden chores.

Roses grow quite large in South Florida and a late August pruning is recommended. Remove healthy top growth as well as twigs and branches that are dead, diseased, injured, unsightly or thin and spindly. Shorten main canes and lateral branches removing small twigs and some of the oldest canes. Leave at least half the length of each main cane that is one to three years old. The first flowers can be expected eight to nine weeks after pruning.

If you're growing mums or poinsettias for winter color, this is the last month you should pinch these plants to increase blooms. Pinching back the stem tips will promote heavier flowering because of increased branching. But, if you wait too late, pinching will remove flower buds

Memorial Services Sunday for Mrs. Price

A Memorial Service will be held for Mrs. Katherine Price, at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 30 at the Everglades Presbyterian Church, 1040 N. Main and N.W. Ave. K. Belle Glade.

Mrs. Price was a charter member of Everglades Presbyterian Church and an active participant until she moved to Winter Garden.

Dr. David T. Evans, pastor of the church will conduct the service.

This service of praise and thanksgiving for this Christian life will emphasize the hope of resurrection in Jesus Christ and will include the 23rd Psalm and the hymn "How Great Thou Art!" both of these being favorites of Mrs. Price," said Rev. Evans.

Members of Mrs. Price's family, including her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Hinson will be present with friends after the service.

We desire to express to our precious Glades friends, our gratitude for their gracious presence at our recent 60th wedding anniversary celebration.

- REINFORCING THE COAST GUARD... to provide additional Coast Guard funding for cutters, fixed-wing aircraft and helicopters to combat drug smuggling... sponsored by Chiles... Senate approved Chiles $500 million request for fiscal 1982; nothing in House version; conference committee agreed to $300 million.

- SEIZING THE CRIMINALS' PROFITS... at Chiles' recommendation the Senate appropriations committee directed the Justice Department to establish assets forfeiture as an operational goal and to conduct more financial investigations aimed at seizing resources of narcotic traffickers... this has been done... also, legislation implementing seizure procedures and broadening definition of forfeitable property has been introduced.

- FRIVOLOUS APPEALS... to limit petitions and appeals of state court convictions in federal courts that are being used to delay justice and overload the court system... sponsored by Chiles and Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina... referred to Judiciary Committee, hearings pending.

Making efforts to get drunks off the highway

DEAR ABBY: The recent letter in your column from Cyd Hasser, whose 16-year-old daughter was killed by a drunk driver, reminded me that drunk drivers have just about been eliminated from the roads of Norway because of mandatory jail sentences and revocation of driving licenses. I have often wondered why we as Americans, compared to other nations, are so reluctant to take this necessary step.

Our state legislature just passed Maryland's drunk driving laws on July 1. Now our congressman, Michael D. Barnes, has introduced in the House of Representatives Bill H.R. 2488, for legislation to combat the nationwide epidemic of drunk driving. Identical legislation in the Senate (S. 671) is being sponsored by Rhode Island Sen. Clifford Pell.

If you agree that such legislation is a step in the right direction, please bring these bills to the attention of your readers. If they are seriously interested in saving lives and reducing injuries on our highways, I'm sure they wouldn't mind spending a few minutes writing post cards to their congressman and senators in support of these bills.

GERALDINE NORBY, BETHSDA, MD.

DEAR GERALDINE: First, some statistics provided by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the National Safety Council:

—One quarter of a million Americans lost their lives in alcohol-related auto crashes over the past decade.

—About 26,000 citizens are killed in drunk-driving incidents yearly.

—Nearly 70 Americans are killed in drunk-driving incidents every day.

—Over one million Americans suffer crippling and other serious injuries every year in drunk-driving incidents.

Dear Abby

The drinking-driver problem creates an estimated economic cost of over $5 billion annually.

—For Americans up to age 35, the No. 1 cause of death is motor vehicle accidents, and more than half of highway deaths are caused by drunk drivers.

—On an average weekend night, one out of every 10 drivers on the road is drunk.

—65 percent of drivers who kill themselves in single-car wrecks are drunk.

—Of every 2,000 drunken drivers, only one is arrested.

—44 percent of all nighttime fatal, alcohol-related crashes are caused by the 16-to-24 age group (this group comprises only 22 percent of the total licensed population).

—For first offenders, would provide mandatory sentence of at least 10 days of community service, in addition to fines and participation in alcohol treatment programs.

—For repeat offenders, would provide mandatory suspension of the driving privilege by the state licensing agency for up to one year with provision for a restricted license.

—Establishes a statewide driver record-keeping system capable of identifying repeat offenders that is easily accessible to the courts.

—A uniform standard definition of driving while intoxicated shall be set at a blood-alcohol concentration level no higher than .10 percent.

—Provides a program coordinated in close cooperation with the local communities that includes:

1. adequate enforcement and public information efforts;

2. efficient arrest and adjudication procedures;

3. monitoring to assure compliance with court-ordered sanctions;

4. pre-sentence screening of offenders for sanctioning purposes.

Variety of aid available for education

If you are the one adult in five who is enrolled in college or an adult education program you should be aware of the wide variety of loans, grants and scholarships available to you. In addition, adults can often take advantage of tuition reimbursement plans at work, as well as income tax breaks, says the Florida Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

More than 18 million people are part-time college students and over one-third of all college students are over 25. Many financial aid programs are aimed at people with adult experience, such as women reentering the job market, mid-life career changers and senior citizens. CPAs say, with careful financial planning and available aid, anyone should be able to continue his or her education.

According to the National Center for Education Statistics, more than half the adult education courses are taken for job-related reasons with business, engineering and health-care sciences the most frequently studied. If your employer offers tuition reimbursement, you will most likely be reimbursed after you complete the course. However, if you are unable to accumulate the money in advance to pay for the course, it may be worth asking your employer to make a loan of the tuition. That way, if you finish the course, it is all paid for. If you don't, you will have to reimburse your employer. Most plans will pay for studies directly related to your work, but some company plans are more liberal and may also apply to families of employees.

Most of the federal aid programs available to regular college students are also available to adults, but regardless of age you must be taking at least six credits per semester — or a part-time college load. Many adult students carry this for an evening program. You may be eligible for the Basic Educational Opportunity Grants (BEOG), Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG), National Direct Student Loans (NDSL), or Guaranteed Student Loans (GSL). For information on these grants and low interest loans call toll-free 800-638-8700.

The federal government also provides aid to part-time students in the form of income tax deductions for education-related expenses, says CPAs. However, to deduct these expenses, your education must maintain or upgrade your skills in your current job, be required by your employer or help you keep your position. You may deduct the cost of tuition and fees as well as books, supplies and any travel and lodging related to this education.

There are an especially large number of financial aid opportunities for women, especially homemakers returning to the work force — sponsored by businesses, foundations and associations. These include The Clairol Scholarship Program, Business and Professional Women's Foundation.

Gold Coast Gardener

By GENE JOYNER
Urban Horticulturist
Palm Beach County

Quite a number of our favorite area trees generally have few problems; however, during the summer rainy season some problems can arise. A number of these problems seem to be the most prevalent at this time of year. With the frequent warm days and high humidity coupled with thunder showers, conditions are ideal for disease development and in many cases trees can be severely injured or killed if corrective treatments are not undertaken.

One of the common shade trees in our area, black olive, is subject to various leaf spotting diseases which result in the foliage aborting and trees becoming very thin and old. Generally the leaves become very spotted and after the leaves are shed new ones appear. However, these rapidly become infected too and so a fungicide treatment is needed to correct the problem.

Fungicides are available at your local garden store or retail nursery and most of these products are broad-spectrum types that will control a wide range of problems. Mahogany trees, which also are extensively used, are subject to tip dieback and various types of leaf spots caused by diseases. In some cases small trees will almost be killed; however, older ones, even if not sprayed, seemingly suffer no permanent damage.

Ear leaf acacia is another tree that has several problems at this time of year and most of the diseases that attack it attack the foliage or small twigs causing dieback. Sprays of copper fungicide seem to be the most effective for that. Some of the beautiful flowering trees such as bottle brush, orchid tree, acacia and several others are susceptible to various leaf spots or stem disorders during the wet summer months and need to be watched closely. The easiest way to determine whether or not you are getting a disease problem is to check when you see discolored leaves for signs of irregular brown spots or water-soaked areas. Insects, which also may be present at this time of year, are usually easily observed and you can correct insect problems much more easily than disease problems.

Once you have determined that the cause of the tree's difficulty is a fungus, try to trim our obviously dead areas and then treat the remainder of the crown with a recommended fungicide for that particular problem.

If you are unsure about the identity of the problem, take a piece of the branch to your garden store or to your local Cooperative Extension Service office where it can be examined and a diagnosis given. In some cases the problem may be below ground in the tree's root system which makes control much more difficult. Information on plant diseases and their control is available in the form of pamphlets and circulars at the Cooperative Extension Office nearest you.

201 GENERAL EMPLOYMENT

Variety of aid available for education

If you are the one adult in five who is enrolled in college or an adult who is considering going to college, you should be aware of the wide variety of loans, grants and scholarships available to you. In addition, adults can also take advantage of tuition reimbursement plans at work, as well as income tax breaks, says the Florida Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

More than 18 million adults are part-time college students and over one-half of all college students are over 25. Many financial aid programs are aimed at special adult categories such as women returning to the job market, midlife career changers and senior citizens. CPAs say, so with careful financial planning and available aid, anyone should be able to continue his or her education.

According to the National Center for Education statistics, more than half the adult education courses are taken for job-related reasons with business, engineering and health-care sciences the most frequently studied. If your employer offers tuition reimbursement, you will most likely be reimbursed after you complete the course. However, if you are unable to accumulate the money in advance to pay the course, it may be worth asking your employer to make a loan of the tuition. That way, if you finish the course, it is all paid for. If you drop out, you will have to reimburse your employer. Most plans will pay for studies directly related to your work, but some companies' plans are more liberal and may apply to families of employees.

Most of the federal aid programs available to regular college students are also available to adults, but regardless of age you must be taking at least six credits per semester — or a part-time course load. Many adult students carry this for an evening program. You may be eligible for the Basic Educational Opportunity Grants (BEOG); Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG); National Direct Student Loans (NDSL); or Guaranteed Student Loans (GSL). For information on these grants and low interest loans call toll free 800-638-8700.

The federal government also provides aid to part-time students in the form of income tax deductions for education-related expenses, says CPAs. However, to deduct these expenses, your education must maintain or upgrade your skills in your current job, be required by your employer or help you keep your position. You may deduct the cost of tuition and fees as well as books, supplies and any travel and lodging related to this education.

There are an especially large number of financial aid opportunities for women — especially homemakers returning to the work force — sponsored by business, foundations and associations. These include The Clairol Scholarship Program, Business and Professional Women's Foundation, The Altrusa International Foundation in Chicago, the Disgrud Fellowship Program in Atlanta, The Sororist Clubs, The American Association of University of Women, The Daughters of the American Revolution and Kelly Services. Some of these are not limited to tuition only, and funds can be awarded for child care, transportation, and travel expenses. Be sure to have all these expenses estimated before you apply for aid, CPAs say.

If you are a veteran contact your local Veterans Administration Office for information on education benefits. Spouses and children of deceased veterans are also eligible for educational benefits. As a senior citizen, many public or private institutions will charge you little or no tuition.

Most states have their own financial aid programs, although they are usually limited to state residents studying at state schools. Often, an academic test is required.

Special fields, such as medical services, offer financial aid with the assumption that the student will eventually work in the field. The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services will grant loans for nurses, for instance, and forgive the loan if the nurse will agree to work for two years in federally designated shorttage areas.

You may be able to finance your tuition payment through the school or agency you are attending. It usually pays to ask, because the school often will bend the rules to accommodate you. Most college financial aid programs are for students studying at least half time, but there are exceptions, so ask around and don't give up if one school turns you down.

Gold Coast Gardener

Quite a number of our favorite area trees generally have few problems; however, during the summer rainy season some problems can develop and disease problems seem to be the most prevalent at this time of year. With the frequent warm days and high humidity coupled with thunder showers, conditions are ideal for disease development and in many cases trees can be severely injured or killed if corrective treatments are not undertaken.

One of the common shade trees in our area, black olive, is subject to various leaf spotting diseases which result in the foliage aborting and trees becoming very thin and old. Generally the leaves become very spotted and after the leaves are shed new ones appear; however, these rapidly become infected too and so a fungicide treatment is needed to correct the problem.

Fungicides are available at your local garden store or retail nursery and most of these products are broad-spectrum types that will control a wide range of problems.

Mahogany trees, which also are extensively used, are subject to tip dieback and various types of leaf spots caused by diseases. In some cases small trees will almost be killed; however, older trees, even if not sprayed, seemingly suffer no permanent damage.

Ear leaf acacia is another tree that has several problems at this time of year and most of the diseases that attack it attack the foliage or small twigs causing dieback. Sprays of copper fungicide seem to be the most effective for that.

Some of the beautiful flowering trees such as bottle brush, orchid tree, acacia and several others are susceptible to various leaf spots or stem disorders during the wet summer months and need to be watched closely. The easiest way to determine whether or not you are getting a disease problem is to check when you see discolored leaves for signs of irregular brown spots or water-soaked areas. Insects, which also may be present at this time of year, are usually easily observed and you can correct insect problems much more easily than disease problems.

Once you have determined that the cause of the tree's difficulty is a fungus, try to trim off its obviously dead areas and then treat the remainder of the trees with a recommended fungicide for that particular problem.

If you are unsure about the identity of the problem take a piece of the branch to your garden store or to your local Cooperative Extension Service office where it can be examined and a diagnosis given.

In some cases the problem may be below ground in the tree's root system which makes control much more difficult.

Information on plant diseases and their control is available in the form of pamphlets and circulars at the Cooperative Extension Office nearest you.

Guidelines for investing in precious metals

By Debbie L. Mandelker,
Investor Information
Specialist, Merrill Lynch
Pierce Fenner & Smith, Inc.

The recent price fluctuations you have noticed in gold and silver items such as jewelry and household goods are part of larger changes in the precious metals markets. In fact, gold and silver are experiencing a 16-month decline in price, and many investors are beginning to ask whether the gold and silver markets have bottomed out and if now is the time to invest in the precious metals.

The answer depends on how you evaluate the various factors that can influence the price of gold and silver.

What Makes Prices Move
Silver and gold are both psychological or hedge commodities, and to that extent their prices tend to move in tandem. Political tensions and uncertainties can be bullish for both gold and silver prices, as can economic uncertainties and inflation which erode the value of paper currencies. When inflationary expectations are running high, gold and silver prices tend to rise.

The level of interest rates relative to inflation can affect prices as well. When rates paid on market funds, Treasury bills and other interest-bearing instruments lag behind the general level of price hikes in the economy, many investors turn to gold and silver in hopes of earning returns that will beat inflation. Conversely, when interest rates exceed inflation—as they have for the last year or so—investors tend to sell gold and silver holdings and buy paper assets that offer a greater real return.

Industrial, Too
Gold and silver, however, are also industrial commodities, and their prices here are influenced by physical supply and demand. Currently, there is no shortage of either metal. In fact silver, which has many more industrial applications than gold, is in surplus for the first time in about five years. One of the reasons is that industrial demand slumped during the recession last year. Another is that silver hit record highs early in 1980, and those lofty prices swelled silver recycling, and, therefore, silver inventories. Over the long term, many precious metals analysts expect both gold and silver to be substantially higher than they are today. For the near—the next several months or so—many also express cautious optimism that gold and silver prices have bottomed out and should turn up.

Inflationary expectations are still strong, these analysts note, despite the Reagan administration's proposed economic programs, and political tensions around the world remain high in such areas as Poland, the Middle East, Africa and Latin America. They see a potential decline in interest rates over the next few months as the economy weakens, and they expect industrial usage, particularly for gold, to pick up at current low prices.

Which to Buy
Gold and silver offer investors diversification beyond financial assets, such as stocks and bonds. But both can be volatile, which is why it is recommended investors put no more than 10 to 15 percent of their portfolios in the precious metals. Silver tends to rise more rapidly and fall more steeply than gold, and that makes it better suited for more speculative individuals who are able and willing to assume the greater risks of owning silver.

Some investors trade precious metals partly on the basis of the gold-silver price ratio. To determine whether gold or silver is the better value, they divide the price of gold by the price of silver. At a ratio of 32 to 1 that is, the price of gold is 32 times the price of silver prices are considered to be in balance, based on historical relationships. When the ratio is higher than 32 to 1, silver may be considered a better buy than gold. When it is lower, gold may be considered cheap relative to silver. However, analysts are quick to point out that the gold-silver price ratio is only a tool, not a basic law of economics. An investor has to look at the fundamentals, they stress, to really determine which is the better buy.

How to Buy
One way to buy precious metals is to purchase bullion bars. Gold bullion bars come in sizes ranging from one-half ounce to 400 ounces, but the most popular are the 32.15-ounce (Kilo) and 100-ounce bars. Among the most popular silver bullion bars are the 100-ounce and 1,000-ounce bars. Gold investors sometimes prefer to buy gold bullion coins, high circulation coins such as the Canadian Maple Leaf, the Mexican 50 Peso and the Austrian 100 Corona. The prices of bullion bars and coins fluctuate continuously with the prices of gold and silver.

Some larger brokerage firms, banks and gold dealers have special gold and silver purchase programs that enable investors to accumulate the precious metals through a "dollar-cost averaging" approach. With dollar-cost averaging, you invest a fixed amount of money at regular intervals in ounces or fractional ounces of gold or silver bullion. One program permits initial investments as low as $100 and subsequent purchases of as little as $50. Another requires a $1,000 initial investment and permits one to invest $100 increments after that.

Another Way to Trade
More aggressive and well-capitalized investors with speculative inclinations and substantial assets may want to trade gold and silver commodity futures contracts. These contracts are promises to buy or sell a set amount of gold or silver at a fixed price for delivery at a specific location(s) at a designated future date. You do not actually have to take or make delivery of the gold or silver. Instead you can take your profits or your losses by selling (if you previously bought) or buying (if you previously sold) identical contracts.

Future contracts offer you the potential to make money whether you are bullish or bearish because you can "short" or sell them as well as buy them. You only put down a small fraction of the contract's value initially, and that can produce substantial profits if you assess price trends correctly. However, if you guess wrong, futures trading can result in substantial losses.
